

Marion Grobb Finkelstein COMMUNICATION CATALYST

Marion Grobb Finkelstein is a Communication Catalyst -- she gets communication moving! She helps organizations and business people increase morale, confidence and productivity by showing them how to change the way they communicate with employees, bosses, clients and colleagues.

Marion has presented to audiences in United States, Europe and across Canada. Having served as a Director of Communications in Canadian federal departments, national museums, and at Canadian and American international airports, she brings with her a wealth of proven, practical and powerful communication strategies she and thousands of her clients have successfully used.

In 2007, the Association of Professional Executives of the Public Service of Canada presented Marion with the "Award for Leadership in Service Innovation" as a member of the team "OPERATION TIM HORTONS". Specifically, she was recognized for overseeing the communications associated with establishing the first-ever Tim Hortons coffee outlet in Kandahar Airfield for the Canadian Forces and allied forces in Afghanistan.

Marion has orchestrated national marketing campaigns, managed controversial media issues, and produced and hosted award-winning cablevision shows. A national member of Canadian Association of Professional Speakers and Global Speakers Federation, she is also an award-winning Toastmaster. She has an Honours BAdmin degree, Marketing Research Statement of Achievement, Media Communications Honours certificate, and is True Colors™ and Personality Dimensions™ certified.

As a published author, Marion has contributed to two books, entitled, "Expert Women Who Speak ... Speak Out!" and, "The Power of the Platform: Speakers on Success", featuring well-known authors such as Jack Canfield, Tana Goertz and Brian Tracy.

Operating on the principle that better communication leads to better business and better life, Marion shares her expertise with individuals from both small and large organizations in the public, private and non-profit sectors.
